About me

I am a dedicated Bachelor's Student in Paper Conservation at the Stuttgart State Academy of Fine Arts, combining my passion for preserving cultural heritage with a strong foundation in design. My academic journey builds on a prior qualification as a State-Certified Communication Designer and hands-on experience in graphic design, where I honed my technical precision and creative problem-solving skills.

Currently, I am deepening my expertise through internships at institutions like the Städel Museum and the Kupferstichkabinett Berlin, where I contribute to the conservation of historical works on paper. My background in Adobe Creative Suite, photography, and digital design complements my restoration work, enabling me to approach projects with both artistic sensibility and scientific rigor.

Fluent in English (C1) and conversational in Spanish (A2), I thrive in collaborative, multicultural environments. Outside of my professional pursuits, I am passionate about film, illustration, and exploring the intersection of art and nature. I am now seeking opportunities to apply my skills in conservation, bridging the gap between tradition and innovation.
